Oroville Dam Spillway Incident

- On 02/07/17 at 1000 hours, the Department of Water Resources (DWR) notified the California State Warning Center of an issue with the main spillway at Oroville Dam. Per DWR-DSOD (Division of Safety of Dams), the spillway was closed reducing the outflow from the reservoir to approximately 5200 cubic feet per second (cfs).
 - At this time, there is no concern with the Dam itself. There is no impact to the public.
 - DWR flow tested the spillway up to 20,000 cfs to test the stability of the main spillway. These releases occurred through 1600 hours at which time, DWR stopped spillway releases and assessed for further damage. Based on DWR's findings, they will propose a plan of action. If the damages surpass the identified parameters DWR will shut down the main spillway and explore utilizing the emergency spillway. If the damages do not surpass the identified parameters DWR will continue to release limited flows overnight. The spillway will be monitored around the clock.
 - DWR-DSOD Engineers are on site and assessing the incident and will provide an update as information is available

CDPH INFLUENZA AND ZIKA UPDATES

INFLUENZA EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

California continues to see higher than expected levels of hospitalization for influenza or influenza-like illness (ILI). While influenza activity varies from year to year and is unpredictable, California generally sees an increase in cases in late December or early January and it often peaks in February or March. The Hemagglutinin 3 and Neuraminidase 2 (H3N2) strain appears to be the predominant strain so far this influenza season and this strain is contained in the current influenza vaccine.

The Medical and Health Coordination Center (MHCC) continues to remain activated in response to the increase in ILI and medical surge occurring throughout California. The MHCC will distribute a Public Health and Medical (Emergency Function 8) Situation Report related to influenza on Wednesday of every week until conditions improve and stabilize.

The MHCC has received one local situation report (San Joaquin County) in the last operational period. There are no resource requests or significant impacts requiring state assistance at this time.

ZIKA EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

The Medical and Health Coordination Center (MHCC) continues to be activated in response to the Zika virus disease. The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) and Emergency Medical Services Authority (EMSA) are currently the only Emergency Function 08 (EF 08) partners at the state level reporting on this activation.

The MHCC is coordinating with EF 08 partners, healthcare facilities and local health departments (LHDs) to ensure responses are timely and accurate.

CDPH and EMSA Duty Officer Programs are monitoring the Zika virus disease outbreak after hours and remain in communication with the Regional Disaster Medical and Health Coordination (RDMHC) and the Medical Health Operational Area Coordination (MHOAC) Programs throughout California.

As of Friday, February 3, 2017, there have been 486 travel-associated Zika virus infections in California. This number reflects an increase of 14 from the 472 cases reported on the last situation report. CDPH centers and programs continue to monitor Zika virus disease and provide information to the MHCC related to their specific activities on a weekly basis.

WEATHER OF CONCERN

Weather of Concern

- Light to moderate rain will continue today with winds picking up this afternoon as another storm approaches northern California. The next storm will move in Thursday morning and transition into showers by Friday with a chance of thunderstorm activity. Snow levels are expected to be at 4000 feet.
 - The largest impacts are expected in the Central Valley and the Sierra.
 - Dry weather is expected to return by this weekend.

Active Weather Warnings, Watches and Advisories by County:

http://www.wrh.noaa.gov/sto/brief/wwa_bc_cal.php

Key Points

Two warm and wet storms will impact California this week with moderate to heavy rain starting tonight, heavy snow over the Sierra (snow levels above 7500K feet), damaging winds (excess of 50 mph at times) and thunderstorms with the potential of small hail and brief heavy rainfall.

- Flooding possible along unregulated rivers, streams, roadways, and low-lying areas Tuesday – Friday.
- Rockslides and mudslides possible, especially along mountain slopes and steep grades tonight – Friday.
- Debris flows also possible over burn scars with periods of brief heavy rain (greater than 0.50" per hour) tonight – Friday.
- Heavy snow will cause hazardous travel over Sierra passes with travel delays likely tonight and again Thursday – Friday.
- Winds will be strong enough to down trees and cause prolonged power outages Tuesday and again Thursday.
- Thunderstorms are possible late in the week, with the potential for small hail, very gusty winds, and flash flooding.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS BY REGION

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

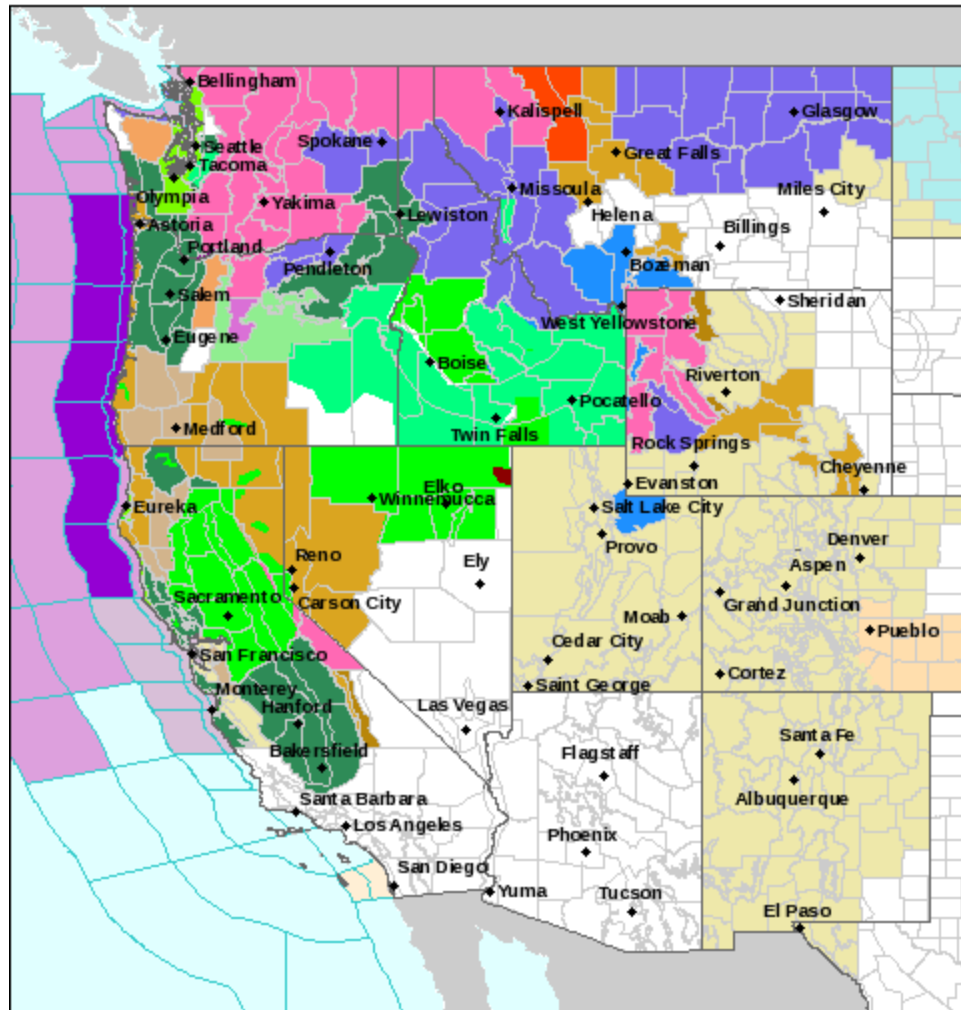

Another offshore storm system will impact Northern California through Friday. For today and early Thursday light to moderate rain will spread over the area with warm southerly winds. Snow levels will rise to 7000 feet or more and gusts will reach 30-40 mph in open areas, and near 50 mph in the most wind-prone mountain locations. Winds and precipitation will intensify along and ahead of the main cold front tonight until the main cold front passes during the day on Thursday. Gusts of 50 mph will be common in many locations, and gusts to 70 mph or more are expected in the most wind-prone mountain locations tonight and early Thursday. Precipitation and wind will begin to decrease later Thursday. Snow levels will gradually drop to 3000 feet in the north and 4500 feet in the south by Friday. Showers will be widespread in the mountains and scattered in valleys until they finally come to an end late Friday. High pressure will move overhead Saturday through next Wednesday and produce warm and dry conditions with occasionally gusty N-E/offshore surface winds from the western Sierra slopes to the coast.

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

The heavy rain will move northward into Northern California today as a ridge builds into Southern California from the south. However, scattered showers with less than a quarter inch of additional rainfall will continue across Central California through the morning hours. Temperatures will warm 5 to 10 degrees both today and Thursday as the ridge over Southern California strengthens. Maximum temperatures will be in the 50s to low 60s across the mountains with mid 60s to mid 70s in the valleys today and 60s to low 70s across the mountains with mid 70s to mid 80s in the valleys Thursday. A Pacific trough moving down the West Coast will bring rain back to Central California starting Thursday afternoon and to Southern California starting Friday morning. It now looks as though showers will continue across the region through Saturday afternoon. Most foothill and mountain locations of Central California will receive between 2 and 5 inches of rainfall, while most of the rest of the region away from the deserts will receive between 0.50 and 1.50 inches of rainfall with this storm. The snow level will start off above 8,000 feet and then drop to between 5,000 and 6,000 feet Friday night and Saturday. South to west winds of 20 to 30 mph with gusts to 50 mph will surface across the wind prone mountain and desert areas Thursday afternoon through Saturday morning. Strong offshore winds of 20 to 40 mph with gusts to 60 mph will surface across the mountains and below the canyons and passes of Southern California Saturday night through Monday morning as the trough moves to the south and east of the region. Significant cooling will occur Friday and Saturday and then there will be a warming trend along with low humidity away from the Central Valley Sunday through early next week.
